When a Cowboy Cries

Par Dillon Carmichael

Album : Where I Grew Up

Some men shoot whiskey

Some men drink wine

To drown out a memory

That they can't outride

When a cowboy cries

Out on the range

Such a lone spot to be

It's breakdowns in ghost towns

With old tumbleweeds

When a cowboy cries

When a cowboy cries

The skies open up

And the tears fall like rain

He's gone with the wind

When it whispers her name

He grabs his pride

Pulls his hat down to hide

Cuz it ain't just the dust in his eyes

When a cowboy cries

It's been a long, hard cold winter

Sleepin' by the fire

Dreams burn like embers

In the middle of the night

When a cowboy cries

When a cowboy cries

The skies open up

And the tears fall like rain

He's gone with the wind

When it whispers her name

He grabs his pride

Pulls his hat down to hide

Cuz it ain't just the dust in his eyes

When a cowboy cries

He falls down and gets right back up

But you know that he's had enough

When a cowboy cries

When a cowboy cries

The skies open up

And the tears fall like rain

He's gone with the wind

When it whispers her name

He grabs his pride

Pulls his hat down to hide

Cuz it ain't just the dust in his eyes

When a cowboy cries

When a cowboy cries
