The Flowers Will Never Die

Par Elton John

Album : Dick James Demos Vol 2

I watch the raindrops falling on my window pane

All the bloomed forget-me-nots won't falter in the rain

Electric light bulbs cannot replace the sun

And picture postcards can't reveal all the things we've done

And the flowers will never ever die

And the flowers will never die

And autumn in the country cannot withhold the sky

And the flowers will never die

He spreads his cloudy blanket on a raging sea

And calms the cruel waves with the help of powers that be

The hours fly by, the clock ticks on maneuvering its hands

While the autumn leaves fall from the trees and return into the land

And the flowers will never ever die

And the flowers will never die

And autumn in the country cannot withhold the sky

And the flowers will never die

And the flowers will never ever die

And the flowers will never die

And autumn in the country cannot withhold the sky

And the flowers will never die

And the flowers will never die

And the flowers will never die
