Goodbye California

Par Get Set Go

Album : The Pleasure Of Being Sad

Goodbye, California, oh, you know you broke my heart.

And so I am leaving you, though the leaving's hard.

Did you even notice that we weren't growing closer

That instead we were growing apart.

I don't think you give you damn,

'Cause you don't have a heart.

Goodbye, California, are you sad to see me go?

I can't seem to shake the memories of what we had before.

You and I, alone at night

Drinking wine and getting high

And making plans to conquer the world.

But now I see the naked truth

Those were empty words.

A love like ours seemed very clear.

But I guess you didn't want me here.

I tried to make you happy.

Oh, I struggled so.

Now I must go.

Goodbye, California, oh, I'm leaving you today.

I've packed up all my things and now I'm getting on my way.

Though you'll always be a part of me

the reverse might not be true

But I will always miss you.

I hope I love my future home

As much as I loved you.
