You Stay Out of Your Life

Par Greg Johnson

Album : Vine Street Stories

You just never can tell who in the world you might meet

But you remind me of a guy I saw

Waving a 12-gauge shotgun up the end of my street

And it's funny when you end up talking to people

Or standing or waiting in line

And I saw you talk to that woman last night

And I did too and she bought me a glass of wine

And she said

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

If I ever break your heart I hope you know I wouldn't break your mind

She said

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

You pretend you're running late and I'll pretend I'm just in time

And when the sun come up

When the sun come up

She was mine

Yes yes yes yes

Yes yes

She was mine

So potholders, diggers, adventurers and father figures

Leave a trail of string behind you

Look forward to the bar where the ships all run aground

And of course I've seen it happen before

Well it's not a job but it's more a gentle blow

Wear me down

Ah but that was last night and the last night in town

And the guy I talked to had bad skin and a permanent frown

When he said

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

If you ever meet my lover and she smiles I wouldn't waste your time

He said

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

If I catch you with my girl again well

Maybe next time I won't be so kind

And when the sun come up

When the sun come up

When the sun come up

And she said

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

And she said to me

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

I'll stay out, I'll stay out

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

Yes yes yes yes she was mine

You stay out of your life and I'll stay out of mine

Yes yes yes yes she was mine

And when the sun come up

When the sun comes up

When the sun come up

And she was mine
