Gunshot Glitter

Par Jeff Buckley

Album : Sketches for My Sweetheart the Drunk

Don't you wanna let go of your heart?

Or you'll resist the beds of bliss

Fortune makes fools of us all

My dear materialista, silence was insane

Parting was mutual

Don't you want the rocket to rock out?

There's room for us both to fly

Tell the man I'm never coming back again

Tell the man I'm never coming back again

Why should you notice at all?

Gone again beside you, we fall

Down to the sea out of the skies

Of gold cards and casualties

I have only come to see you shine

Feminine smiles, the right side is wise, more than I

Wanna be your lover

Lipstick my name across your mirror

Blood red with flake gunshot glitter

And be one with all you disown in your young life

You paranoia politician diva

Girl, you paranoia politician diva

Wanna let go of your heart?

Left behind a hypnotizing swirl

The semi's left behind

Don't you want the rocket to rock?

There's room for both us to fly

Same show everyday, you don't have to blow up in the sky

So I just came from his town

Left my coins behind

Maybe some poor clone's will probably buy himself a line

Why should you care if I crash your affair?

Why should you notice me? I really wanna see you shine

I wanna be your lover

Lipstick my name 'cross your mirror

Now, be one with all you disown

True love has come to us all

Blinded by the flame, right side smiles

Organized male, organized silence was insane

The parting was mutual the moment I became

A paranoia politician diva

Paranoia politician diva

Yeah, a paranoia politician diva

Oh, a paranoia politician diva

Diva, diva, diva, diva
