The Pretty Ones

Par Princess Chelsea

Album : The Loneliest Girl

It's an age old situation, the consequence of the selfish gene
In pursuit of their perfection, they exist in a tired dream of Cars and clothing hair and makeup, know your angles flaunt them to get what you want
We're waiting, we're watching you look lovely you look so good.
It may seem superficial but this is how the world spins round
All the pretty ones, climb the ladder
The pretty ones, jump the queue
The pretty ones, sell the products
The pretty ones, buy them too
Frequent a lot of fancy parties, use the time you lose to make sure that you
Televise your pretty story it's not a crime for you to be proud of it
If you think we won't notice when you take a break from all of the Cars and clothing hair and makeup, no we're watching you look so good
It's all so superficial this is how the world spins round
But the pretty ones, getting older
The pretty ones, lose their hair
The pretty ones, climb the ladder
The pretty ones, fall further
