

ICIBILLET

Paroles de chanson

03/05/2026

The Time Has Come (live at the Milky Way)

Par The Dresden Dolls

Album : A is for Accident (live 2001-2003)

The time has come to speak of many things

Of jacks and queens and kings

I bared my wrists and promised to begin

But you cut the blade straight in

The time has come: let's play find the missing song

There is something very wrong

Try hard my love do you hear the distant strings

Please remember what this means

Did I come back for all of this?

It seems absurd somehow...

With one well-placed flick of the wrist

You've really done it now...

(All of my blind ambition left me deaf with perfect vision)

The time has come

For things to come undone

That we should not have begun

At last I felt a numbness overcome

And now you turn and run...

The time has come

To take me in your arms and touch these fragile scars

You have the choice now so decide

If you want in or out

There is too much left for us to try

You can't just give up now

The time has come

To speak of many things

Of jacks and queens and kings

It took that cut to bring me back to life

They're bleeding and they're frightened still I hold out both my hands:

No one in the world will ever touch me there again.