December Night

Par Winona Avenue

Album : Winona Avenue

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye

A late December night would change me

A dose of new life put my troubles behind
And led me further in my story
Now I live with intention with you on my side
Together we're in perfect harmony
It's a wonderful sound, it won't quiet down
We're making a difference among this town
You were always around even before I found you
I remember when

I never really felt alive

I was longing for a new song in my life

I felt a thousand days go by till the sun would rise

A late December night

I was feeling so alone

I was tired of being left out in the cold

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye

A late December night would change my life

My wandering life was never in line

I needed something to believe in

I barely could see through the perilous scene

I needed a sense of direction

What a treacherous whiteout, it's all in the past

It's turned to a glistening pool of hope

If storms return, I won't be alone

The past is just a memory

I never really felt alive

I was longing for a new song in my life

I felt a thousand days go by till the sun would rise

A late December night

I was feeling so alone

I was tired of being left out in the cold

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye

A late December night I fully made up my mind

It was black and white

That you were everything I needed

You've made me alive

You're like the sun on a cold December night

You've helped me become what I've become

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye that night

I never really felt alive

I was longing for a new song in my life

I felt a thousand days go by till the sun would rise

A late December night

I was feeling so alone

I was tired of being left out in the cold

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye

A late December night would change my life (Oh, a December night)

The days went by (Yeah, it would change me)

The sun would rise

This never really felt like home till you caught my eye

A late December night would change me
